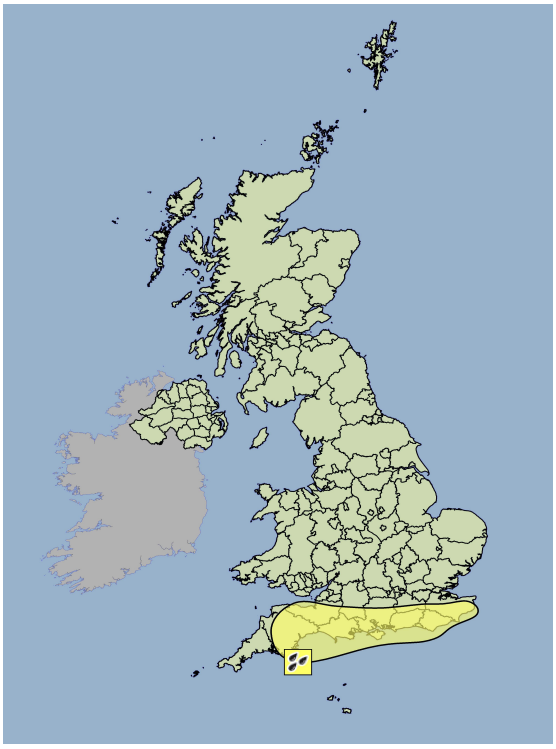
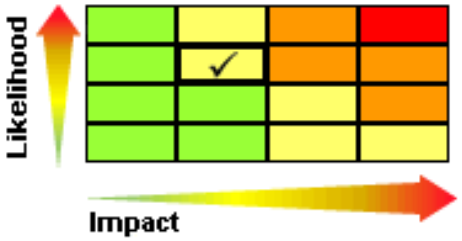
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A very unsettled start to this week is expected as an area of low pressure moves slowly southwards across Britain to most likely be centred over the Irish Sea by the end of Tuesday. Bands of heavy showers forming on the southern flank of this area of low pressure will stream across much of southern England.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 21:00 on Mon, 27th Jan 2014 until 23:45 on Tue, 28th Jan 2014

Frequent showers, some heavy, will bring a further 10-15 mm and locally up to 25 mm rain to parts of southern England later on Monday and into Tuesday. There is the risk of up to 40 mm of rain on the high ground of southwest England.

The public should be aware of the potential for disruption due to localised flooding, especially where the ground is already saturated.
